Golfe Juan is a tiny village situated between Cannes and Nice on the French Riviera. In 1815 Napoleon landed in Golfe Juan having escaped from the island of Elba. In 1962, the BAILEY landed at Golfe Juan. The bay was a poor anchorage and long were the nights spent in watching the anchor, the barometer, and the wind speed.

From Golfe Juan, tours went out to the Alps-The most beautiful mountains on the whole trip, the Riviera-BAILEY sailots saw the "Cote d'Azur" from end to end including Monaco, Nice and Cannes, and skiing-very popular among OI Division personnel.

The BAILEY was in Golfe Juan harbor for New Years Eve and at the stroke of midnight the signalmen put on the lights, the snipes tooted the ship's whistle, the deck force rang the ship's bell and then everybody went to bed.
